

Memorial to Doris Shaw

August 1992 - Grass Hill Church

Jean asked me to say a few words today about Doris Shaw and her life.

Fortunately for all of us Doris was able to express her appreciation for nature in her sensitive water color paintings. Doris loved the environment here in Lyme and that is also very evident in her beautiful paintings of this area.

Although she was reluctant to play the piano for an audience, she enjoyed every minute of her talent at the key board.

Doris tried to be almost 93 but she never seemed old. She was so full of enthusiasm and interest in everything from the tiny blatts under our feet as we walked together along the old Pent Road to the things our scientists are doing out in space.

Her caring for other people was genuine and kind, full of compassion. Doris was a person you wanted to talk with if you were sad or lonely. She was also someone you wanted to share Christmas with or have as a guest at the wedding of your son or daughter. Our children were always happy when Doris could be with us on some special occasion.

I never knew anyone I admired more than Doris Shaw and I shall always miss her.
